Nineteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time
August 13th, 2017

Today's Readings: 1 Kings 19:9a, 11–13a Go out and stand on the mountain before the Lord; the Lord will pass by. Romans 9:1–5 I speak the truth in Christ, I do not lie; my conscience joins with the holy Spirit in bearing me witness. Matthew 14:22–33 Immediately Jesus stretched out his hand and caught Peter, and said to him, "O you of little faith, why did you doubt?"

Most of us will not have the experience of Peter—nothing in our human experience leads us to expect that we will ever walk on water! But that is not the goal of trust in Jesus or of Christian living. The real challenge in this gospel is to see the many ways Jesus comes to us and calls us in our everyday lives—not as One walking on water; but as One dwelling in the other in need. We are called to see Jesus in anyone who is calling out for help, anyone who seems to be "drowning" in the chaos of everyday living, anyone who cries out to us.

It takes more trust and confidence to see Jesus in the other than to walk on water! This, because it demands a great self-emptying on our part to see dignity in those in need. But this is also the glimpse of the Life that comes out of our dying—serving another is an encounter with Jesus, the One who saves, Jesus comes to us endlessly in recognizable circumstances (liturgy and prayer, for example) and in unexpected ways (in those I need, in good surprises, in the visits of loved ones). We need only to reach out to him when he says, "Come," and let him catch and save us.

OUR GOD SPEAKS TO US - By Fr. Thomas Richstatter, OFM

God is not a silent, distant God but a God who wants us to know who he is and who we are and what life is all about. We believe in a God who freely chooses to reveal his mysterious plan to create us, love us, and take us to himself. We believe in the God who spoke to Abraham, who spoke to the patriarchs and prophets, and who spoke his definitive word in Jesus Christ. And just what did God say? God didn't waste a lot of time talking about incidentals: "The earth is round." Or, "Today is Wednesday." God got right to the point and said, "I love you!" And we hear God's most emphatic "I love you" in the birth, life, preaching, healing, passion, death, and resurrection of his Son, Jesus Christ. This kind of revelation demands more than a yes of agreement to a proposed fact: "Yes, the earth is round." "Yes, today is Wednesday." The word of love that God speaks in the Bible demands more of us than "yes, that's true." It calls for a total yes—a yes of commitment—the kind of yes that couples exchange in their wedding vows. "Margaret, do you take Joseph to be your husband?" "Yes, I do." Saying "yes, I do" to the proposal of love that God offers us in Jesus Christ is what being Catholic is all about. That is why the Bible is essential to Catholicism. How can we say yes to Jesus, how can we be a disciple of Jesus unless we know Jesus? And to know Jesus we must know the Scriptures, for as St. Jerome said, "Ignorance of the Scriptures is ignorance of Christ." The Scriptures are not a list of propositions to be believed. They are an encounter with a person to be loved.

Generation to Generation

God has not appeared to me as he did to Elijah. I was not there by the Sea of Galilee with Peter and Andrew, James and John, when Jesus walked by and said, "Follow me." I wasn't knocked to the ground in a blaze of light like St. Paul. I received the faith quietly, gradually. My parents (and teachers, neighbors, and friends) handed on the tradition they had received from their parents, spouses, teachers, and friends. And the members of that former generation handed on what they had received from the generation before them, all the way back to the apostles. Even St. Paul says that he handed on what he had received.

Those who knew Jesus and witnessed his death and resurrection were commissioned to preach and make disciples. Some disciples handed on the message orally and some, inspired by the Holy Spirit, wrote down their faith experience. Catholics treasure God's self revelation in both its written and oral forms. Catholics cherish Scripture and Tradition. Both reveal the same divine mystery. Both bring us into contact with the living God. And the word of the living God is a living word. When the Scriptures are proclaimed at Mass, we believe that Christ is present. It is Christ himself who speaks to us.

Ongoing Conversation

I keep a file of my Sunday homilies in the hope that, three years from now when the same readings are used, I will be able to use the same homily over again. But it never works out that way. Each time the passages are proclaimed, God says something new. When I hear Jesus tell Peter and Andrew, "Come after me," the words imply something different—something more—for me now than they did when I was fifteen, or when I was twenty-five, or even when I was fifty. God speaks to the Scriptures and in the Tradition handed down to us from the apostles. And if we respond to God's word with lives filled with God's Spirit and lived in imitation of Jesus, the definitive Word of the Father, we can be confident that the message will continue to be passed on—generation after generation—until all the ends of the earth hear God's great "I love you."
