Livestream Mass Communion – Sundays 12:15 to 1:00

Because of the decreased numbers for Mass, we're opening up a new way to receive Communion. Every Sunday, from 12:15 to 1:00, anyone who participated in the livestream Mass can go to Saint Anne's to receive Communion. It will go like this:

- Two ushers will be present to make sure everyone is wearing masks and no more than 30 people are in the church at any one time.
- As you enter the church, the ushers will tell you whether you can come in to receive Communion, or (if the church is full) they'll ask you to wait outside.
- When you enter, please walk up the centre aisle to receive Communion. Fr. Matthew will be in the usual spot to administer Communion.
- After you have received, you can find a place in the church to offer a prayer of thanksgiving. If the church is mostly empty, feel free to pray for as long as you want. If close to 30 people are in the church already, please offer a short thanksgiving prayer and then leave the church so more people can enter and receive Communion.
- When you've finished your prayer, please exit the church by going up the side aisle.
